

<http://www.lacitybeat.com/article.php?id=509&IssueNum=29>

Listed as one of the top 7 events to attend for the week

Tuesday, December 30, 2003

NANU NANO

Everyone digs science if it looks cool. As if to prove this, the County Museum's LACMA Lab, in collaboration with professors and graduate students from the UCLA departments of design, chemistry, and English, have created nano, an interactive exhibition for all ages that merges the arts with the atom. With experiential spaces and art-making activities, you'll enter the sensory world of nanoscience and its many cultural manifestations. And it all looks really cool. Closes Sept. 6, 2004. Noon-5 p.m. Free. LACMA Boone Children's Gallery, 5905 Wilshire Blvd., L.A., (323) 857-6000. Lacma.org.

